1. INTRODUCTION

- 1.1 Malaysia is a multi-racial country adopting a system of government based on parliamentary democracy with a constitutional monarchy. The nation is built on integration of its people, territorial integrity, a stable government, sovereignty and international recognition.
- 1.2 The Government is responsible for ensuring that sovereignty and national security are continuously safeguarded and maintained. In this context Malaysia's national security refers to a state of being free from any threat, whether internally or externally, to its core values. Threats to national security since 1957 such as the Communist Party of Malaya insurgency, incursion by the terrorist army of the Sulu Sultanate into Sabah in 2013, efforts to overthrow the Government through non-democratic process, militancy and terrorism as well as global threats in various forms have necessitated the formulation of a comprehensive National Security Policy (NSP).
- 1.3 The NSP is introduced as the principal policy in confronting the various security threats which have become increasingly dynamic and complex. Through the NSP, the implementation of the primary strategies will ensure that National Core Values are safeguarded thereby keeping Malaysia safe from all forms of threat, not only physical but also non-physical, that which may influence and corrupt people's minds. This includes interference by foreign powers in the administration and internal affairs of the nation.
- 1.4 In this sense, the formulation of the NSP as the primary guide and reference for federal and state ministries and agencies is proof that the Government is persistently committed in ensuring that national security is assured and maintained. Consequently, the support and cooperation of the people is detrimental in guaranteeing the survival of Malaysia as an independent, safe and sovereign nation based on the principles of parliamentary democracy and constitutional monarchy. Not only is the NSP intended for the society in-being but more importantly, for the well-being and peace of generations to come.

2. NATIONAL SECURITY POLICY STATEMENT

- 2.1 The NSP is the overarching policy or basis for comprehensive national security aimed at maintaining, safeguarding and defending the National Core Values which will ensure the survival of Malaysia as an independent, peaceful, safe and sovereign nation.
- 2.2 The NSP was formulated under the National Security Council Act 2016 [Act 776] which confers power to the National Security Council in formulating policies and strategies for national security. This responsibility includes the monitoring of the implementation of such policies and strategies.

3. MALAYSIA IN THE GEOSTRATEGIC CONTEXT

- 3.1 Malaysia has a strategic position in the South-East Asian Geo-political environment. Geographically, it is also located along important Sea Lines of Communication, namely, the Straits of Melaka and the South China Sea which have frequently attracted the attention of the major powers. Malaysia's location influences its bilateral and multi-lateral relations with other countries, both regional and international, in terms of important political, socio-economic, security, defence, cultural interests amongst others. In addition, Malaysia's security is influenced to a larger degree by regional and international geopolitics in the following premise:

Regional

- 3.1.1 ASEAN is the primary focus in Malaysia's foreign policy. As one of the founder members of ASEAN, Malaysia fully supports and upholds the basic principles contained in the ASEAN Charter such as the opposition in the use of force, non-intervention in the affairs of member countries as well as the promotion of peaceful conflict resolution as the key to ensuring peace, stability and prosperity in the region. This commitment is aimed at maintaining national strategic interests.
- 3.1.2 Malaysia also fosters regional strategic cooperation through active participation in regional security and defence organisations such as the ASEAN Regional Forum (ARF), ASEAN Defence Ministerial Meeting (ADMM) and Five-Power Defence Arrangement (FPDA) to safeguard national interests.

International

- 3.1.3 Countries such as the United States of America, China, France, Russia, United Kingdom, Japan, India, Australia and the European Union (EU) have strategic interests in Malaysia and the region. These countries are important because they have the power to shape the global political and economic environment militarily as well as the economic and technological edge to broaden their political influence and pursue their respective interests.
- 3.1.4 Malaysia's commitment to international organisations such as the United Nations (UN), Organization of Islamic Cooperation (OIC), Non Aligned Movement (NAM), Commonwealth, G-15 and G-77 in handling global strategic issues has resulted in it being regarded as a friendly nation to be trusted and respected at the international level. Through active participation in the international organizations, Malaysia's policies and interests on numerous security issues have been highlighted and maintained. Over and above that, its participation in Peacekeeping Operations and post conflict rehabilitation in various countries affected by war, internal conflict and natural disasters have also acknowledged Malaysia's role and empathy as a global player. The selection of Malaysia as one of the non-permanent members of the United Nations Security Council, and as chair of associations such as the OIC, NAM and G-77, among others, manifests Malaysia's role at the global level by the international community.

4. NATIONAL SECURITY ENVIRONMENT

- 4.1 Malaysia has undergone a challenging evolution in maintaining its sovereignty, national security and public order. The current security landscape has become increasingly complex with threats from both State and Non-State actors which will have high impact on the security and sovereignty of the nation. Past experiences faced by the nation in relation to security includes colonisation by foreign powers, the Communist insurgency, the Indonesian Confrontation, secessionist movements, the 13 May 1969 ethnic conflict, extremism (ethnic, ideological, religious and political), economic crises, natural disasters and territorial infringements. Measures to ensure national security and the survival of Malaysia as a sovereign state needs to take cognizance of both internal threats and the geopolitical climate at regional and international levels as follows:

4.1.1 Fragility of National Unity

Issues that touch on communal sensitivities, ethnicity, religion, beliefs and culture which are widely and freely disseminated in the social media continue to be a source of communal friction in Malaysia. These issues continue to hinder the country's aspiration in creating a united and progressive society.

4.1.2 Challenges Facing the Nation's Democratic System

There are efforts and schemes to bring down the Government through non-democratic process which violates the laws of the country. Such actions will weaken our national institutions which will threaten public order and the security of the nation.

4.1.3 Illegal Immigrants and 'Refugees'<sup>1</sup>

The peace, prosperity and rapid economic growth enjoyed by the country has attracted the influx of illegal immigrants and 'refugees' to our shores. The presence of illegal immigrants and 'refugees' not only creates negative impact on the social, economic, criminal, political domains and diplomatic relations, but also has the potential to threaten the peace and security of the nation.

4.1.4 Disputes over Territorial Claims

Malaysia has been facing the issue of overlapping territorial claims and disputes over land, maritime and air territories with its neighbours as well as major powers. These disputes have the potential to adversely impact bilateral relations between Malaysia and its neighbours. At the regional level, overlapping territorial claims can spark the risk of armed conflict leading to regional collateral ramifications and potentially invite the intervention of interested third parties if not handled appropriately.

4.1.5 Extremism and Terrorism

The issue of international terrorism is an ongoing global threat that has a direct impact on the security of Malaysia. Extremist and terrorist elements that have infiltrated the country as well as the involvement of Malaysian citizens in terrorist activities both within and outside the country can spark chaos and threaten the peace of the country.

4.1.6 Cyber Security

The inception and rapid development of Information and Communication Technology (ICT) has increased our reliance on technology thereby aggravating the risk of cyber security threats. The open borderless dimension of cyber space with easy access and availability as well as anonymity has also increased the risk of cyber-attacks on the nation's Critical Information Infrastructure, abuse of the internet, cyber espionage and other related transgressions. The present trend of cyber-attacks and cyber security incidents have been in the rise and increasingly difficult to predict.

4.1.7 Disasters

Malaysia is exposed to the dangers and risks of natural disasters such as floods, typhoons, storms, outbreak of infectious diseases and epidemics, earthquakes, tsunami, droughts/El Nino, landslides, haze and the impact of climate change such as increase in sea levels, air and land temperatures as well as those that are human induced. Disasters. These travails are complex and of great magnitude occurring, within or beyond our shores, will adversely impact the lives of the people and inhibit the smooth running of the Government.

4.1.8 Crises

Malaysia is vulnerable to various types of crises, both internally and externally, including economic and social crises as well as armed conflict. Such crises have a direct impact on the people which will adversely affect national security. External crises can trigger unmitigated migration to other countries including Malaysia.

4.1.9 Transnational Crime

Malaysia's geographical location sharing vast land borders with its neighbours and positioned along Sea Lines of Communication, namely, the Straits of Melaka and the South China Sea, is vulnerable to transnational crimes such as smuggling (of people, wildlife, jungle products, drugs, goods and arms), human trafficking, piracy, organised crime, cybercrime, money laundering, economic crimes and armed robbery at sea.

4.1.10 Pandemics and Infectious Diseases

Global and internal population mobility which has been enhanced and afford rapidity has exposed Malaysians to health concerns. Pandemics and the spread of infectious diseases whether emanating internally or externally can have adverse effects on the nation's socio-economic wellbeing. Non-infectious medical conditions such as hypertension, diabetes, kidney infections, heart diseases and the likes, if left unabated will eventually bankrupt the nation.

4.1.11 Energy Security

The world today is facing uncertainties in energy security. Reliance on traditional fossil energy sources is estimated to increase until alternative energy sources that are cleaner and less expensive are utilised extensively. However, at present, a scramble for fossil energy sources may occur, and trigger regional and international conflicts.

4.1.12 Food Security

The survival of a nation is also dependent on food security. World population growth has led to an increased demand for food sources. Failure to manage existing sources well will lead to competition over limited sources and create overdependence on external supplies.

4.1.13 Proliferation of Nuclear Arms and Arms Development Programmes

The nation is also exposed to nuclear threats including the use of nuclear weapons. The easing of controls and pressure on nuclear programs and the development of Weapons of Mass Destruction by State actors, particularly the major powers, as well as the risk of accidents in nuclear plants can have disastrous consequences. This includes grave ramifications on the health of the people in the vicinity, marine life and the environment. The development of Weapons of Mass Destruction remains a major threat to peace in the region.

5. MALAYSIA'S CORE VALUES

5.1 Malaysia's core values are required to be maintained, preserved and strengthened in order to guarantee its survival as an independent, peaceful and sovereign nation. These core values are as follows:

5.1.1 Core Value 1: Territorial Sovereignty and Integrity

Territorial sovereignty and integrity are paramount to the stability and security of a nation. The creation of Malaysia comprising the states of Johor, Kedah, Kelantan, Melaka, Negeri Sembilan, Pahang, Penang, Perak, Perlis, Sabah, Sarawak, Selangor, Terengganu and the Federal Territories, as enshrined in the Federal Constitution, must be maintained and preserved. Malaysia's sovereignty also extends to its territorial waters as it enjoys sovereign rights to its maritime zones in accordance with the relevant international laws. Malaysia needs to protect and defend its sovereignty and territorial integrity from both internal and external threats.

5.1.2 Core Value 2: Socio-Political Stability

Socio-political stability is vital to creating a peaceful and harmonious environment for the people of Malaysia. The Government is responsible for upholding parliamentary democracy, constitutional monarchy, the rule of law, sanctity of the Constitution, as well as respect for and guaranteeing of human rights based on the Federal Constitution. At the same time, the people are responsible for supporting the policies implemented by the Government to ensure peace and stability in the country. These principles must be respected and adhered to by all Malaysians irrespective of their political beliefs, religion, ethnicity, origins or social status.

5.1.3 Core Value 3: National Integration

Malaysia is a multi-ethnic, multi-cultural and multi-religious country. National integration is core to the strength and security of the country. It can be achieved through the bonds that unify all Malaysians. The formula for unity in a country with a plural society such as Malaysia thus depends on the various communities coming together to live with mutual understanding, tolerance, acceptance of diversity, understanding of the social contract that underlines the unity of the people and respect of human rights based on the Federal Constitution.

5.1.4 Core Value 4: Good Governance

Good governance is fundamental to national security. It concerns not only the Government but also the private sector. This is because good governance will enable a country to implement the policies that have been formulated, manage the resources of the country efficiently and effectively, gain international recognition and fulfil the expectations of the people. Good governance incorporates, among other things, high integrity, absence of corruption, honesty, trust, justice, equal rights, transparency and responsibility.

5.1.5 Core Value 5: Economic Integrity

Economic integrity means the country has a sustainable and resilient economy that can weather any internal or external economic threat. An economy that is weak will impact the stability of the country as a consequence of poverty, unemployment and dissatisfaction in the society. Economic integrity also encompasses the participation, acquisition, involvement and efforts of all Malaysians towards ensuring the economic survival of the country. Furthermore, a strong economy combined with improvements in social conditions is a contributory factor towards the enhancement of national security as a weak economy has the potential to threaten national security.

5.1.6 Core Value 6: Social Justice

Social justice is vital to ensure national security is preserved. The protection of basic human rights for every Malaysian citizen is championed in accordance with the Federal Constitution and international laws which Malaysia is party to (with reservations). All Malaysians, even those from minority groups, must be protected and no party should be excluded. This core value must be protected in accordance with the Federal Constitution by taking cognizance of the differences in the socio-economic status of any particular ethnic group. Thus, Government policies and provisions in the Federal Constitution which have granted special rights for groups needing them will continue to be honoured. However, the principle of social justice should not be the launching pad for any party to make excessive claims which can then threaten the security and sovereignty of the country.

5.1.7 Core Value 7: Sustainable Development

Sustainable development is one which fulfils present as well as future needs so as to achieve a balance in economic, social, demographic and environmental development. Security must be given priority in any development plan to ensure the sustainability of the nation's resources, people's prosperity and fulfilling the needs of future generations. Unequal development may lead to an ecological and demographic imbalance.

5.1.8 Core Value 8: People's Security

The proliferation of ideas as well as the global security environment has brought about the transition from a state-centric security to a people-centric security approach. The prosperity, welfare and rights of Malaysian citizens entrenched in the Federal Constitution must be protected and guaranteed by the Government. At the same time, the nation's rights must also be embraced and upheld by the people with full patriotic fervour and the sense of responsibility towards national security and sovereignty.

5.1.9 Core Value 9: International Recognition

The pragmatic, principled and neutral attitude adopted by Malaysia has thus far gained recognition and afforded continued economic, political and security cooperation from the major powers, both regionally and internationally. Bilateral and multilateral diplomatic strategies that are comprehensively formulated, supported by the implementation of a consistent foreign relations policy since independence, have created a positive image for Malaysia at the international level, and avoid interference from foreign powers in its administration and internal affairs as well as guaranteed the continued recognition of its sovereignty and interests.

6.10 Strategy 10: Foster the Spirit of Self-Reliance

Foster love, pride and responsibility for the nation among the people through a total defence approach. In this sense, the interests of the country exceed that of personal concerns. In other words, the people must possess a sense of patriotism and nationalism which will hinder any attempt to involve oneself in activities that may be detrimental to peace.

6.11 Strategy 11: Cultivate Economic Resilience

Strengthen national economic fundamentals to face global economic competition as well as maintain the legitimacy of the government to manage the economy of the country without foreign influence. Economic interests offshore must be protected in order to support domestic economic growth.

Improve efforts to fight corruption, irregularity and abuse of power at all levels and sectors (both public and private) through legal, regulatory and policy provisions.

6.13 Strategy 13: Implement Sustainable Development

Implement development policies by taking into consideration current and future needs in the areas of security, ecological and demography. The awareness of society as well as interested parties of the nexus between sustainable development and national security needs to be improved.

6.14 Strategy 14: Manage National Resources Efficiently

Streamline the mechanisms for national resource management to utilise resources optimally and at the same time encourage the search for alternative means to avoid over-reliance on foreign assets. This will ensure the survival of the nation.

6.15 Strategy 15: Guarantee Human Rights Entrenched in the Federal Constitution

6.20 Strategy 20: Maintain Regional Cooperation

Ensure regional cooperation in promoting and defending the National Core Values such as sovereignty, territorial integrity and socio-political stability. At the regional level, Malaysia has been actively using the ASEAN platform to manage various regional conflicts.

7. CONCLUSION

7.1 Regardless of the forms of changes in the domestic, regional and international security landscape in the future, the Government must ensure that national security and survival are assured by implementing the policies and strategies embodied in the NSP. In this sense, the NSP outlines the outlook of national security which is linked to both internal and external environments. In order to achieve this aim, the Government has to preserve the fundamentals enshrined in the Federal Constitution as well as ensure that the nation embrace universal values (human rights). The core values of the NSP have been formulated holistically by taking into consideration an essential elements of a state, being territory, government, people, sovereignty and international recognition.

7.2 The implementation of the NSP will be monitored and reviewed every three (3) years by a coordinating committee at ministerial/departmental/ agency levels which will be chaired by the Director-General of National Security to ensure the effectiveness of the strategies embodied in the NSP.

7.3 The success of the NSP would depend on the commitment, support and cooperation of every federal and state ministry, department and agency, the private sector, Non-Governmental Organisations and the people. Thus, the NSP must be adhered to in formulating, coordinating and implementing national policies which are directly or indirectly related to national security.
